

North Carolina Central University

Department of Art
Presents

vi·sion

/ˈviZHən/

the ability to think about or plan the future with imagination or wisdom.

Visions

Imagination and creativity lead to endless possibilities in the visual space. For an artist, anything you can imagine becomes real with strong technique and persistence. Visions is a collection of student work that shows a range of progression from technical proficiency to creative execution.

Technical Proficiency

Creative Execution

North Carolina Central University

Art Department | Mission

The Department of Art at NCCU has an overarching mission to foster broad inquiry within the visual arts and to provide opportunities to study non-western, diverse cultural artifacts and experiences. As the first public liberal arts institution founded for African Americans, North Carolina Central University occupies a special niche that informs the study of art. In addition to traditional training in the visual arts, the Department of Art proudly celebrates and fosters the study of artistic productions of African and African American culture, emphasizing the past and present contributions of people of color. With such emphasis, we provide a uniquely designed curriculum to educate students pursuing visual arts careers in today's society and the global economy. Art majors explore technology, engage in internships, pursue individuality and enjoy the creative fruits of cultural diversity.